Santee Sideboard

The namesake of this piece is an alley one block from our studio, known for its bazaar-like display of stalls hawking clothes and textiles at wholesale prices. The scene is very reminiscent of markets in Central America and, walking through it during breaks from the shop, one feels instantly transported out of the US.

It's a hectic environment, however, and the Santee Sideboard is a meditation on minimalism in answer to the raucous consumerism taking place below.
